

Welcome to Livenlululand - National - 2012

The poppy that inspired Claude Monet it has saved her life. Cradled in pragmatic education of a large wine family from Beaune, proven by the establishment of a grueling battle for the need of Michelin- star against the odds, those who dreamed of art and literature was lost in the lines of a story it wrote for another. But in 2005, this poppy up along her route, all fragile and very red, becomes a revelation. Now, Verodalla will make creations in border of design. Later, she invented her world. Peyo imagined Schtroumpfs, Verodalla created the "LivenLuLu", characters without eyes or nose, whose shapes evoke feelings. With the help of Serge, her second husband, "livenlululand" will expand and export to New York. In 2011, the artist decided to settle in the Big Apple, with her small world, ensuring that it is better to return home. Pending her return, some strings of her talent can be seen on www.verodalla.com.
